The organization is set across over 600 acres (243 ha) and features programs consisting of sport camps for young athletes, adult camps, a boarding school, including a post-graduate/gap-year program, events, professional and collegiate training, group hosting, and corporate retreats.[1] On April 25, 2023, Endeavor announced the sale of IMG Academy to BPEA EQT for $1.26 billion. On June 28, the deal was completed. Aerial photographs of the Bradenton campus. Nick Bollettieri founded the Nick Bollettieri Tennis Academy in 1978. Sports company IMG purchased the academy in 1987.[2] IMG acquired the youth division of the David Leadbetter Golf Academy in 1993 and added programs for soccer and baseball in 1994. Hockey and basketball programs were added in 2000 and 2001, respectively, and by 2002 the IMG campus had expanded to 190 acres (0.77 km2).[3] IMG Academy suspended its hockey program in 2003.[citation needed] Football was added in 2010,[4] as well as lacrosse.[5] Track & field and cross country were added in 2013.[6] IMG Academy currently sits on 450 acres (180 ha) of land, and in 2011, IMG paid $7.5 million for an additional 110 acres (45 ha) adjacent to the current campus for future expansion.[2] In 2014, IMG purchased an additional 24 acres (9.7 ha). The land borders IMG's west campus, where the sports performance academy is undergoing a $198 million expansion.[7] The IMG Pendleton School was founded in 1999 as a co-educational, college preparatory school for athletic students. In 2012, the school changed its name to "IMG Academy".[8] It delivers both academics and athletics.[9] In 2021, the school's football team faced off against Bishop Sycamore in which they won in a 58-0 rout. Bishop Sycamore received scrutiny after the game and its existence was questioned.[10][11] On April 25, 2023, parent company Endeavor agreed to sell IMG Academy to private equity firm BPEA EQT at a value of $1.25 billion - the sale was completed in June.[12][13] Some of the tennis courts at the academy IMG Academy tennis programs offer year-round tennis camps ranging from one to five weeks in length and from 2019 to 2019 were led by director Rohan Goetzke.[14][15] The campus has 35 outdoor hard courts, 3 indoor hard courts, and 16 green clay courts.[16] In 1987, thirty-two academy students or former students were in the Wimbledon draw and twenty-seven were in the U.S. Open. Famous past students include Andre Agassi, Monica Seles, Jim Courier, Kei Nishikori, Alejandro Tablo, Anna Kournikova, Serena Williams, and Maria Sharapova.[17] Current students include Michael Mmoh. IMG announced the John Madden Football Academy in March 2010 and held its first camp from June 4–6, 2010. The football program offers a residency program and year-round camps ranging from three days to five weeks in length and was previously led by former NFL quarterback Chris Weinke.[18] The academy fielded a high school football team for the first time in 2013.[19] In 2013, MaxPreps called IMG Academy the "nation's top high school football facility." [20] Kevin Wright was named head coach in 2015 after Weinke accepted a position as quarterbacks coach with the then-St. Louis Rams.[21] Wright guided the program to its first undefeated regular season (9–0) in 2015.[22] IMG Academy offered an academy soccer program and year-round soccer camps from 1999 to 2017. IMG Academy was home to U.S. Soccer's full-time residency program for the United States' U-16 and U-17 men's national teams. It was integral in developing the United States' top youth soccer prospects. The Bradenton Academy grew from an initial twenty players to thirty in 2002 and then to forty in 2003. The program was split into a U-16 squad and a U-17 squad. The girls program was a member of the Girls Academy League. The academy traced its roots back to Project 2010 which highlighted ways U.S. Soccer could make the senior men's national team a legitimate threat to win the World Cup by the end of the decade. Two programs that were born from Project 2010 were Generation Addidas (previously called Project 40) and the Bradenton Academy. The academy was started in January 1999 with the backing of IMG and Nike, but was closed in 2017 due to the proliferation of U.S. Development Academy programs.[23] IMG Academy has an academy baseball program and year-round camps, in addition to summer Wood Bat Leagues.[24] IMG Academy's postgraduate program played in their only appearance in the 2016 National Prep Championship in New Haven, Connecticut. Among the teams were Brewster Academy, DME Academy, Elev8 Sports Institute, Fork Union Military Academy, Hargrave Military Academy, IMG Academy, Northfield Mount Hermon School, and more.[25] The head coach of IMG's national high school team is Sean McAloon, who previously was the head coach at St. John's College High School in Washington, D.C. Its basketball alumni include Dallas Mavericks forward Dwight Powell and Orlando Magic forward Jonathan Isaac, the 6th overall pick of the 2017 NBA draft. In 2017, IMG Academy had its first two selections to the McDonald's All American Game: Trevon Duval was selected to the boys game and Rellah Boothe was selected to the girls game. In 2018, Anfernee Simons entered directly from the academy to the 2018 NBA draft, becoming the second player in the academy's history to do so and the first American to enter and be selected in an NBA draft directly after graduating from high school since the league first implemented age restriction rules in 2005 During the preparation for the 2017 NBA draft, the IMG Academy hosted their first ever draft combine. The Professional Basketball Combine was held as an alternative (mainly for seniors) to measure their abilities and potentially give them the chance to enter the NBA, if not allow them the chance to play in the NBA G League or even overseas, with nearly every participant that year doing exactly that. Currently,[when?] four players that participated in the event signed two-way contracts to enter the NBA properly, with eight of them going overseas and 11 players entered the G League.[26] The event would be held once again in 2018, gaining more popularity that year with the participation of former UCLA player and current professional player LiAngelo Ball.[27] Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the entire WNBA 2020 season was held there. Under a plan approved on June 15, the shortened 22-game regular season was held without fans present.[28][29][30] IMG Academy has an academy lacrosse program and year-round camps. IMG Academy launched a high school team in 2012, featuring a new women's program made in 2018. Notable alumni include Tehoka Nanticoke.[31] Prior to that, IMG Academy hosted their first full-time lacrosse student-athlete, Matthew Xirinachs, starting in September 2010. Xirinachs went on to join the Drexel men's lacrosse team in fall 2011.[32] The women's team hired head coach Jeff McGuigan in July 2019. IMG Academy has an academy track and field and cross country program and year-round camps.[33] In 2022, IMG Academy hired two-time Olympian Donald Suxhol[34] as Director of Volleyball to launch its entry into girls' indoor volleyball beginning in fall of 2023. The inaugural class of 29 girls included two teams that will compete in the 18U and 16U club circuit.[35][36] Main article: List of IMG Academy alumni Since opening in 1978, IMG Academy has trained hundreds of Olympic and professional athletes, including those in the NBA, NFL, MLB, MLS, NWSL, ATP, WTA, PGA Tour and LPGA Tour. ^ DeLollis, Barbara (October 14, 2021). Check out the latest recap of the program's accomplishments, records, and milestones from this impressive group of student-athletes. The Desert Twilight XC Festival took place in Mesa, Arizona, and IMG student-athletes brought their A-games to the course under the lights at The Links Golf Club. Finishing with a score of 87-98, IMG's girl's team consisting of Tatum David, Jais Ward, Carly McNatt, Emilia Puskas, Eve Silt-Scherr, Mia Andrae, and Marcela Guzman took home the Sweepstakes section of the meet. David, a Foot Locker and Nike Cross Nationals All-American, set a new course record and career best of 16:41.5 for 5K, and she captured an all-time Florida high school runner state record as well. Currently, her time is the fourth fastest high school girls time in the nation as well as the fastest time run by a sophomore girl this season. The 10th grader certainly set the tone for the Ascenders, currently ranked No. 18 on the latest MileSplit50 updated prior to this competition. David finished first overall, passing the '08 record for the previously-set time of 16:46.66 while Ward and McNatt also aided the team to victory with their top-10 results of 18:03.2 and 18:12.1, respectively. They became the first Southeast girls team to capture this title, with nine of IMG's 17 student-athletes running lifetime best performances at this meet and 13 running the best marks of their IMG careers. Following this performance by the program, David secured a No. 10 ranking on the 2020 MileSplit50 Cross Country Girls Rankings for individuals. Check out David's post-race interview on DyeStat and RunnerSpace by clicking this link. Check out the girls team's full interview by DyeStat by clicking this link. You can also view a separate interview of the team through this link on MileSplit. It means a lot to me to be on a team this great and this passionate about the sport, and it's amazing to come here and focus on and execute this. It's very special to me to be on this team and to have great coaching." - Tatum David, IMG Academy track and field, Class of 2023, #1254 above In the same meet, IMG Academy's boys team ran in the Championship section and finished at No. 2 overall. Comprised of student-athletes Alex Weekes, Cole Piotrowski, Noah Winters, Vince Mwangi, Isaac Carney, and Isaac Perez, this group of individuals capped off a notable trip to Arizona. Check out some images of the program's student-athletes venturing to Cathedral Rock in Sedona, AZ, the Grand Canyon, and Flagstaff, AZ, one of the most prominent running communities in the country! In addition to such a monumental meet, IMG Academy's track and field and cross country program has been competing in the weekly Nike Cross Country Virtual Nationals competition. Based on their results so far, IMG Academy's girls team is currently ranked No. 3 nationally and is the fastest group from the southeast region. The boys team is also ranked No. 2 in the southeast region. Tatum David is sitting at No. 1 nationally with her time of 16:14.4, and David, Ward, McNatt, and Puskas make up the top-4 ranked girls in the Southeast as of the second week of the virtual competition. There's so much more that this program will accomplish both individually and collectively as the season continues. The culture within the program and across the entire IMG Academy campus yields an unmatched camaraderie and support system that hold true from the classroom to the track. Whether it be a challenging academic curriculum within our college-preparatory environment or a competitive athletic training regimen that's proven in developing next level stars, IMG Academy's track & field and cross country program is truly the optimal setting for dedicated and passionate student-athletes.
